On 1 July 2015, the Migration Review Tribunal, Refugee Review Tribunal and Social Security Appeals Tribunal amalgamated to form the Administrative Appeals Tribunal (AAT).

The AAT conducts independent merits review of administrative decisions made under more than 400 Commonwealth laws. The AAT can also review decisions made under Norfolk Island laws.

The AAT is comprised of a Principal Registry and the following divisions:

- Freedom of Information
- General
- Migration & Refugee (including the Immigration Assessment Authority)
- National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS)
- Security
- Social Services & Child Support
- Taxation & Commercial
- Veterans' Appeals

The most common types of decisions that the AAT reviews relate to:

- migration and refugee visas and visa-related decisions
- child support
- Commonwealth workers' compensation
- Family assistance, paid parental leave, social security and student assistance
- taxation
- veterans' entitlements

The AAT also reviews decisions relating to Australian citizenship, bankruptcy, civil aviation, corporations and financial services regulation, customs, freedom of information, the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS), passports and security assessments by the Australian Security Intelligence Organisation (ASIO).

Note the Australian Governments Productivity Commission's List of tribunals found in Appendix D page 829 of its April 2014 Access to Justice Arrangements report includes the following entities as tribunals which are not included in the register above:

- Industrial Court of New South Wales – while the Industrial Relations Commission and the Industrial Relations Court share the same registry when the Commission is in Court session it is a court of record with Supreme Court equivalent status and so for that reason has not been included on the register
- Transport Appeal Board – this entity was abolished in about August 2012. Transport workers who wish to challenge workplace sanctions now do so through Fair Work Australia or the Industrial Relations Commission.

Workers or employers unhappy with an Insurer's decision can apply for a review by the WCR. Appeals of the WCR decisions may be made to the Industrial Relations Commission in respect of claims and employers can appeal to the Industrial Magistrates Court in respect of a premium/policy decision. WCR also provides dispute resolution services. Medical Assessment Tribunals are set up to provide independent, expert medical decisions about injury and impairment sustained by Queensland workers. The tribunals are made up from an independent panel of specialist doctors. A referral to the medical assessment tribunals may be required if there are conflicting medical opinions in relation to whether employment has been a significant contributing factor to the injury or whether there is an ongoing incapacity for work as a result of a work injury. Only insurers can make a referral.

The Tribunal was established under the Workers Rehabilitation and Compensation Act 1986 . Administratively, the WCT is part of the South Australian Industrial Relations Tribunals and details of it can be found in the IRT website and annual reports.

Note the Australian Governments Productivity Commission’s List of tribunals found in Appendix D page 829 of its April 2014 Access to Justice Arrangements report includes the following entities as tribunals which are not included in the Register above:

- Administrative and Disciplinary Division of the District Court. The Court’s rules and procedures do not appear to differ according to the nature of the various divisions and for that reason, the Court (and this division) has not been included in the Register.
- Dust Diseases list matters – these would appear to be District Court proceedings heard by Industrial Court judges because they hold commissions as District Court judges and have experience dealing with WCT matters. There is no information to suggest that the matters are heard differently to Court matters and so these matters are not included in the Register.
- Industrial Relations Court - shares the same registry as the IRC but undertakes its business as a court and so for that reason has not been included on the Register
- Licensing Court – administratively the Licensing Court is part of the South Australian Industrial Relations Tribunal, but the work it does and the way it does it is not distinguished from the way in which a Court would approach matters and so for that reason has not been included
- Skills and Training Commission – There is a Training and Skills Commission in SA which is responsible for advising government on workforce planning and the skills required. It provides quality assurance of vocational education and training and regulates the apprenticeship and traineeship system. As I could not locate any information on this website about disputes and dispute resolution I have not included it in the Register.
- Wardens Court – has jurisdiction to determine disputes about mining tenements but does so in a manner no different from a Court and so has not been included on the Register.

The work of the ACCS is conducted by Conciliation Officers who are appointed by the Governor in Council and engaged by the ACCS. Conciliation Officers' statutory obligation is to make all reasonable efforts to conciliate in connection with a dispute and to bring the parties to agreement. However, where a matter cannot be resolved by agreement, Conciliation Officers have the power to make recommendations or directions, refer medical questions to a Medical Panel or issue a certificate allowing the parties to proceed to court. About two-thirds of disputes resolve without the need for a conference. However, in the majority of matters, a conference is convened between the parties and their representatives where the Conciliation Officer uses alternative dispute resolution methods (but in a conciliation model rather than a pure mediation model) to attempt to resolve the dispute.

Legal representation is permitted. Most disputes are resolved with the assistance of a Conciliation Officer. If issues remain unresolved after the completion of conciliation, there is the option to apply for arbitration. The primary role of the Arbitration Service is to make determinations on workers' compensation disputes, which are legally binding upon parties.

Note the Australian Government Productivity Commission's List of tribunals found in Appendix D page 829 of its April 2014 Access to Justice Arrangements report includes the following entity as a tribunal which are not included in the register above:

- Warden's Court – this court is constituted under the Mining Act and deals with disputes about mining tenements. The Warden's Court is recognized as a Court, can make final orders, conducts hearings in open court, obtains witnesses by subpoena, evidence is given under oath and the normal rules of evidence apply. For these reasons, the warden's Court is not tribunal-like and has not been included.
